Mary REDWOOD 1812 - 1853

Mary REDWOOD was born at Clayhanger in the north of Devon in 1812, to John and Mary REDWOOD. She was probably working as a servant, or in a farm environment, in or near Wiveliscombe in Somerset, when she met Isaac SQUIRE. They married in 1838 in Wiveliscombe, but sadly, Mary died in childbirth, or soon after, in 1853, while carrying her sixth child. This child, William, survived though, and lived to be at least 60 years of age. Isaac did marry again in 1859, to Elizabeth HODGE, and they had a further two children. Isaac and Mary's eldest children (John aged 15 years and Betsy aged 12 years) may have helped in raising this young family in the interim years. The family stayed near Wiveliscombe for another generation till Isaac junior married and moved to Alcombe, near Dunster in Somerset.

Robert REDWOOD b c1755

Mary's grandfather is Robert REDWOOD, born about 1755. I cannot find any reference to his marriage or birth details on-line, so this is as far as I can trace for now. He married Mary, based on the information in his son John's birth record.

John REDWOOD b 1779

John REDWOOD was born in 1779, in Butterleigh, Devonshire. We have birth and marriage records for John, so we know he married May MARSON in 1808, in Ashbrittle, Somerset. This is only about 10km south of Wiveliscombe. Their second child and eldest daughter was Mary.

Mary REDWOOD b 1812

Mary REDWOOD was born in 1812 in Clayhanger in Devon, but not far from Wiveliscombe. She married Isaac SQUIRE (senior) in 1838. She was working at Harwood at the time, and Isaac was at Harood. Could these just be alternate spellings of the same place?

Her story is largely described in the introduction, above, and continues in the SQUIRE narrative, written previously.
