

William Laity MORRIS 1807 – 1897

William was born in Penzance, Cornwall, in 1807, and married Honor LOWRY at the young age of 21 years, in 1828. By the 1841 census, they had seven children, but three were to die before the remaining family set off for Adelaide in 1847. Although they lived in a mining area, William is listed as a wheelwright, blacksmith and coach-builder, all skills vital to the mining industry. Three more children were born to this couple in Adelaide, but what brought them here? This family stayed in Adelaide, rather than moving to a mining town.

It is difficult to be sure about William's parents. There are three William Laity MORRIS baptised in Cornwall in the early 1800's, but the parents are probably James MORRIS and Elizabeth LAITY. This is supported by William's obituary, but I can find no other records as proof. Elizabeth's surname cannot be proven at present, but her supposed LAITY surname was included as a middle name in several descendants.

The MORRIS families were very prolific and produced large families in South Australia, so I have many cousins in Adelaide. I know only a few.

We can be sure that William Laity MORRIS married Honor LAWRY in Gulval, Cornwall, in 1828, and he was recorded in the 1841 census as living in Gulval, Cornwall with his wife and six children. They lost two more children in 1842, and arrived in Adelaide on 14 August 1847, with five children, to start a new life. Three more children were born in South Australia. Their eldest child was also William Laity MORRIS, born 1828 in Gulval, Cornwall.

William worked in Adelaide as wheelwright initially, before setting up his own business in King William Street south. He was well regarded as a waggon builder in Adelaide. He lived to the age of 90 years, a great age for his generation.

His eldest child, also William Laity, married Ann TRELOAR in 1853, in Adelaide, and together, they brought ten children into the world. The first, Ann MORRIS, was born in 1854, in Adelaide, and the next six children were born in Kapunda. William lived to the age of 80 years, and died at Queenstown in 1908.

Anne MORRIS married William RUNDLE in 1876 in Moonta. William and Ann were my great grandparents. You can continue this family story through my RUNDLE grandparents to the SQUIRE family, my parents. These two narratives have been written and published previously.
